

Professor Conducts Boynton Orchestra

By Heather Zimar

An Ithaca Public Education Initiative (IPEI) Red and Gold Grant is helping the Boynton Middle School Orchestra learn firsthand what it's like to work as professional musicians.

The grant enabled Diana Geiger, Boynton instrumental music teacher, to bring community partner James Mick, Ithaca College (IC) assistant professor of music education, to the school for several professional-style rehearsals.

"He's an absolute master teacher," Geiger says. "Without the grant, I don't think we would have been able to afford this. I like to give the students one professional experience each year."

Geiger is one of 67 teachers and others to receive a Red and Gold Grant this academic year. The grants are awards for one-time projects that strengthen and enrich Ithaca schools.

Mick conducted Tchaikovsky's "Serenade for Strings" at the school orchestra's spring concert last week in the Kulp Auditorium at the Ithaca High School Performing Arts Center.

In preparation, Mick divided the piece into sections for students, teaching bowing techniques and practicing scales with different rhythms. He also brought his IC students to Boynton to observe and assist.

"The project is about becoming a professional musician," Geiger says. "He teaches about being prepared and staying engaged, things adult musicians need to do. He's really trying to bring that out in the kids."

"I reinforce what Diana does in class with them every day," Mick says. "Hearing it from another source is great. It's a new voice, so it has meaning. It's something different, so it allows the energy and pace of the ensemble to change." Geiger adds, "He's different from me. He has a bit of a different background. We could say the exact same things, but the students hear it differently."

James Mick of Ithaca College leads the Boynton Middle School Orchestra.

Photo provided

Eighth-grade violinist Sophie Izzo says, "[Mick] focuses more on the instrumental groups, like the violins, violas and cellos. He dissects the piece."

"He works on different skills than Ms. Geiger does because she has her own style of teaching," eighth-grade violinist Sophia Cotraccia adds. "He uses a lot of metaphors."

In one rehearsal, Mick worked with students on volume and tempo. "Great compositions such as this one take us on a journey," he tells the group. "We know that the tempo helps us on that journey. This is Tchaikovsky; he's really known for his gut-wrenching music."

Using descriptors such as "snappy" and "sticky," Mick directs students to "really make it pop out." Next, he tells them to prepare to drop "elevator levels." "It's not a smooth ride," he said. "You're hitting the ceiling as we go down."

Cotraccia says that rather than asking students to "just play louder," Mick has taught them techniques for accomplishing this, such as using less bow and less pressure. "We've learned a lot about different dynamics," she says.

Cotraccia and Izzo agree that they enjoyed having Mick's students visit. "They were lively, and they grabbed people's attention because they were young and energetic," Izzo says. "They were good teachers, and they helped us practice parts of the music over and over until we got it right."

"It was neat to think that they're students, too, and we were helping them as much as they were helping us," Cotraccia says.

Mick echoes this benefit from the collaboration. "I always want to be in the public schools," he says. "This is vital for my field, to stay up to date. The same issues have been around in public schools for years, but it's the wrapping that changes; it's good to come in and see that wrapping. What remains the same is that kids want to achieve, be successful and feel important. Successful teachers, no matter what they teach, try to do this."

"He's been really great and responsive, and the kids are learning a lot from him," Geiger says, noting that such an experience is important for students serious about music. "I have at least six students who are looking into colleges for music already. There are many others who will continue in community orchestras throughout their lives. I know many have developed a deeper understanding of music through this project."

"IPEI is a great group to work with," Geiger adds. "They do so much for the community, especially helping us to bring in community partners for projects. I really appreciate what they do."

IPEI has awarded some $70,000 in grants this school year, including $29,509 in 67 Red and Gold Grants; $37,138 in 31 Teacher Grants; a $1,900 Community Collaboration Grant; and a $925 Phyllis B. Brodhead Library Media Technology Grant.

For more information, see www.ipei.org, call 256-IPEI (4734) or email ipei@ipei.org.

SUMMER FUN IS RIGHT AROUND THE CORNER!

MAINSTAGE Voted Ithaca Times' Best of 2012 & Winner of 9 Broadway World Awards!

Last of the Red Hot Lovers	Jun 13-29
Gypsy	Jul 4-20
4000 Miles	Jul 25-Aug 3
Clybourne Park	Aug 8-17

PINKALICIOUS the Musical	Jun 20-22
With Two Wings	Jul 11-13
A Year with Frog and Toad	Jul 18-20
James and the Giant Peach	Aug 1-3
The Wiz	Aug 15-17

Secure Your Seats Now!

Subscriptions: 607.273.8588 (ON SALE NOW)

Tickets: 607.273.4497 (ON SALE MAY 1)

HangarTheatre.org

Hangar Theatre: 801 Taughannock Blvd., Ithaca, NY 14850

GREENTREE SOIL PRODUCTS

BAGGED SOILS AND CUSTOM BLENDS.
GREAT FOR SEED STARTING,
RAISED BEDS, HOPS AND MORE!

GREENTREE GARDEN SUPPLY
606 Elmira Rd, Ithaca, NY
www.greentreesoils.com

ALL YOUR FAVORITE FOOD

LOOKING FOR LUNCH?

ITHACA BAKERY

FREE LUNCH DELIVERY
MON-FRI
273-7110 OR
ORDER ONLINE

WWW.ITHACABAKERY.COM

Single-Stream Recycling
The Recycling Market
Food Scraps Recycling

Hey,

you gonna recycle that?

Tompkins County Solid Waste Management Division
www.recycletompkins.org
607-273-6632